INCIDENTS

BELOW: Dave Swanson sports one of the smart feathered beanies that marked all freshmen initiates as targets of those who had been through the ranks previously.

Endurance Is the Key: Tests Through Initiation

Questioning eyes and half-scared whispers greeted the ageless halls of St. Paul Bible College as new students trickled in. The first challenge was a battery of tests; the second, a lengthy registration line.

Various activites during the first week were designed to acquaint the freshmen with other students, the school, the faculty, the administration. Orientation week ended with a retreat at Silver Lake where tensions were eased in egg-throwing contests, rowboat races, and traditional counselor-dunking. Along with the fun came a rich spiritual ministry designed to help new students begin their college career in a most meaningful way.

Upon return to the college, the frosh quite quickly became aware of their lowly status as initiation events were thrust upon them. Feathered beanies, toothpaste mustaches, and "air raid" wastebaskets made the scene. The initiation party on Thursday night held the culmination of frosh tortures; survivors became members of the official SPBC family.

Rev. Bailey Introduces Victorious Deeper Life

The fall deeper life conference brought to the St. Paul Bible College campus the Reverend Keith Bailey of Chicago, Illinois. Our speaker has been superintendent of the Midwest district of the Christian and Missionary

He spoke of the importance of the Spirit filled life and climaxed the week with a message on how to be filled with the Holy Spirit. Many students met God in a new way under Rev. Bailey's dynamic ministry.

RIGHT: The ministry of Rev. Keith Bailey on the SPBC campus for three days in October will be remembered by many as a milestone of decision leading to a deeper life in Christ.

LEFT: A segment of the audience demonstrates the prevailing mood of careful attention as the Word was brought by God's messenger.

Missions Conference Theme Stresses Great Commission

Go — Preach, Teach, Reach, the theme of missionary conference this year, was carried out in a number of ways. The exhortation to go was illuminated by these specific thoughts: preaching the unsearchable riches of Christ; reaching the lost souls for Christ; and teaching the holy Word.

Several missionaries brought pertinent challenges to the SPBC audience. The messages were not only moving and inspirational, but also practical insights into foreign lands and the missionary life and work. There were seminars on problems to expect on the field, on practical life situations, and on prospects of future ministries. Always the truth was presented of the never-failing guidance of the Holy Spirit in faith and in power.

Queen Reigns Over Homecoming

"Building an Image of Excellence," the theme of Homecoming '68, included in its perspective the possibilities of excelling in all things done for the glory of God.

The activities of the weekend kept most of the visiting alumni busy from the Friday chapel with Dr. Don Kenyon until the closing banquet Saturday night. In between were a special missionary meeting, business meetings, and a basketball game.

The present student body of the college was involved with the alumni activities to the extent of electing a Homecoming Queen to be crowned during the half at the basketball game. Barbara Brown was named queen. Her court included a princess from each class as well as the basketball princess.

Party-Goers Camouflage Celebrate Eve of

On the evening before All Saints' Day, even the intellectuals at St. Paul Bible College lay aside the usual routine to hob nob with goblins and witches and other spooks nondescript. The annual Halloween party sponsored by the sophomore class took place in the "cafeteria," although it was hardly recognizable in its cornfield guise.

Sophistication, All Saints' Day

Fellows and gals thought it great sport to play trick-or-treat in one another's dormitories during the open house. Probably the greatest benefit of the festivities for this holiday is the fact that the collegians are permitted for once to remove their masks of sobriety and show their reality in these hallowed halls.

ABOVE: Act I — Disguised as mortals a group of tricksters entertain their fellows with a near-sighted simulation of Broadway. BELOW: Whatever is in the box, it better be worth all the suspense that auctioneer Miller is building up.

The annual Christmas concert was held at Hamline Methodist Church. The stately sanctuary resounded to the tributes of the college concert choir and band in honoring the two advents of our Christ. His nativity and His return were presented by the Male Chorus, the Choral Club, and the Girls Choir, both as individuals and as a combined choir.

Mr. George Thompson of the college speech department gave narrations between vocal and instrumental numbers. Miss Mary Dohrmann performed as guest soloist. Harp and violin artistry provided a stirring offeratory rendition.

First Winter Banquet Augments Traditional Holiday Festivities

"O come, all ye faithful, joyful and triumphant!" Even in the rush of the last weeks of school before the holidays, the real meaning of Christmas is not forgotten on the St. Paul Bible College campus. Amid the mistletoe and holly and evergreen boughs that brighten the dormitories and hallways, the nativity of Christ is depicted in any number of ways. Early Monday mornings a group of unusually-dressed young ladies compete with their noisy transportation to "repeat the sounding joys" on their way to Phy. Ed.

The first winter banquet, known this year as "The Blizzard," (and quite accurately, as it turned out) was a well-attended event featuring faculty and staff in the program. The annual open house for both dormitories attested to the ingenuity of the students in decorating their rooms.

Early one frosty morning the senior girls donned sheets and halos to awaken the other students in the tradition of Santa Lucia. They traveled by candlelight, bringing with them pre-breakfast snacks of cookies and hot chocolate. Another night all the girls were in for a surprise when male voices echoed in the halls at midnight. Caroling in such a manner, and the other Christmas traditions fill the last week of school before vacation with an overflow of Christmas spirit.

ABOVE: First a trio, then a whole host of angelic senior girls and their dean bring early morning cheer. Note that the "halos" are not for real! LEFT: Along with the blessings of Christmas came more than brief "showers" of snowflakes. Ask Mr. Hahn; he'll tell you!

Pastoral Lectureship
Merits Student Interest

The annual pastoral lectureship series sponsored by the Bible and Theology department of the college featured some of our own instructors as well as prominent local theologians and Bible scholars. In the three chapel hours, expositions were given by the Dean of Students, philosophy department chairman, and speech instructor. Later meetings included two panel discussions, and lectures concerning stewardship, audio-visual aids, and the use of illustrations. The lectures were given by a local Alliance pastor, a political figure, and a professor from Bethel College and Seminary.

LEFT: Rev. Melvin Hall recounted his experiences of the Lord's blessing in relation to stewardship. BELOW: Dr. Robert Smith's illustration of the relevance of Abraham and Isaac to the present would be difficult to forget.

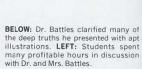

Beginning on the day of prayer which preceded the first meeting with our speaker for the week, it was evident that the Holy Spirit was at work in the lives of many dedicated students.

Testimonies in chapel following the deeper life conference indicated that many positive commitments were made in regard to victorious living.

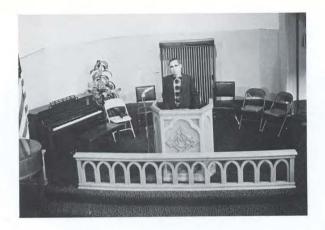

Students Exploited in Campus Work Project

8:05. The second bells rings. The dean rises to bring the students to attention.

"Each one of us is helping to keep the tuition costs of the college at a minimum by participating in this semi-annual campus clean-up day," and the students do not begrudge the few hours of physical labor in place of a morning's mental toil.

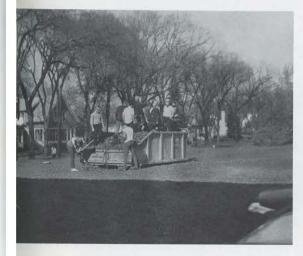

Every fall, and then again in the spring, the entire SPBC campus gets a thorough once-over as faculty and staff members rub shoulders with students in removing several months' accumulation of refuse. Several teams sneeze in the attic dust; even the fellas end up with dishpan hands; every window gets a licking on both sides. On clean-up day Mr. Miller is the ''good guy'' who brings around cookies for everyone, and Mrs. Root is the infamous one who assigns duties and doesn't leave a name off the list.

The lively day usually draws to a close with an innocent (?) water fight and a long line of hungry helpers in the spic 'n' span cafeteria.

Highschoolers Crowd SPBC Campus for Weekend

About 350 high-school students from Montana and the Dakotas, Iowa and Nebraska, Michigan and Wisconsin, and lots of points farther and nearer crowded onto the four-and-a-half acre SPBC campus for one weekend in April. Jay Kessler of Youth for Christ International was the speaker for the weekend campus life conference, and he was well-received by most of the conferees.

Now, no more I ... but Christ in me was the Scriptural thought around which the conference was centered. In each meeting Jay emphasized the importance of living the true Christ-life; the presentations were relevant and meaningful.

Events of the weekend included a banquet, recreation, several rallies, a reception, singspiration, and special Sunday services.

Joyce Widtfeldt Chosen Queen; Reigns Over Twilight Fascination

LEFT: Banquet entertainment was provided by recording artists John Bender, Jerry Nelson, and their wives. Mr. Nelson is at the piano.

The social highlight of the year at St. Paul Bible College is always the spring banquet. Dayton's Skyroom in Minneapolis, provided the setting this year for "Twilight Fascination," May 10.

The most exciting moment of the evening was of course the announcement of the queen. Mr. Ferry had the privilege of this duty. After the four attendants, one from each class, had been escorted to the platform, the queen was named. Miss Joyce Widtfeldt made a very lovely and gracious monarch for a night. She was crowned by last year's queen, Joyce Parker.

John Bender, Jerry Nelson, and their wives provided the entertainment for "Twilight Fascination," selecting several classical numbers as well as gospel songs for the banquet guests and the queen in particular. The Benders and Nelsons are talented recording artists. For Mr. Tewinkel, the banquet almost became a huge birthday celebration; and Mr. Rice was granted his wish for a fashion show featuring men's and ladies' formal attire.

Grads Achieve Degrees

For 31 seniors, May 25, 1969 was not just another Sunday; neither was it just the end of another school year; rather, May 25 this year marked the achievement of a goal hard-earned during the last four or more years. Graduation indicated the necessity to enter a new phase of life and challenge.

Dr. Theodore Epp, founder and director of Back to the Bible Broadcast, from Omaha, Nebraska, addressed the graduates during the baccalaureate service. The commencement address was given by Dr. H. T. Armerding, President of Wheaton College.

Liberal Arts Nucleus

Education, as students know it today, is a far cry from that at the turn of the century. Schooldays then were described as "golden rule days of reading, writing, arithmetic, and hickory sticks," according to a popular tune of the time. Although the basic academics remain the same, they have inevitably expanded to include the knowledge that has been acquired since the early 1900's. Education continues to move onward with everything but the hickory sticks.

For the student at St. Paul Bible College, the freshman and sophomore years include many subjects categorized as liberal arts. These junior college courses are intended to give the students a basic foundation for further studies in an area of specialization which begins during the junior year. An education in these primary areas of study, combined with further knowledge and personal faith in God, contrib-

The reading and writing of the early 1900's may be found at SPBC in the revised and upto-date classes of College Composition and World Literature. Mrs. Phyllis Braden and Mr. Stanley Larson share the responsibility of teaching freshman composition to regular and accelerated classes. Mr. Larson also instructs the literature course.

A full schedule of speech classes is handled by Mr. George Thompson. Greek and French are the foreign languages offered at SPBC. Many missionary candidates find the study of French helpful in learning other languages later. Miss Armia Heikkinen is in her first year of teaching French here. Mr. Vernon Olson teaches New Testament Greek for the benefit of ministerial students.

ABOVE: When exams are done and the weariness catches up with him, no one begrudges Ron Buchholz a siesta in the main lounge.

Professors Elucidate Scientific Concepts

Science courses offered at SPBC include those in the categories of natural and social science. Zoology and Botany are taught by Mr. Robert Rice. Instructor of psychology, Mr. John Allen, aided students in their understanding of human behavior. Further studies in the sciences include educational psychology and an introductory course in sociology. As knowledge continues to increase at a phenomenal rate, it is vital that the Christian be familiar with these areas of study in order to be an effective witness in an intellectual world.

LEFT: If the library lounge were ever intended to be a place to study, the knowledge of such would come as a shock to many a passer-by. BELOW: For all his clowning and antics both in class and out, no one would question the fact that Doc Gates knows his philosophy.

"Doc" Unveils Details of Practical Philosophy

"What is truth?" one SPBC student asks another.

"What is reality?" the second queries in defense. Both probably have been stimulated to discuss these deep philosophical questions as a result of one of Dr. John Gates' lectures.

The philosophy major at SPBC is intended as an area of basic study for the individual who plans to continue his education with later seminary training. The applicability of philosophy to the area of religious thought is emphasized. Dr. John F. Gates is the chairman of the philosophy department at St. Paul Bible College.

RIGHT: Old and New Testament History classes bring most freshmen into the experience of Mr. Mason's lectures, where they find out that there is a lot more to a "Bible story" than at first appears. BELOW: Mr. Richardson is known for frequently drawing upon his own experiences in explicating Scriptural truths.

Bible, Theology, History Suit Ministers for Duty

Through the study of the Bible, man is better able to understand his relationship to God and to other men. Whether or not a student plans on seminary training, the instruction he receives in the Bible and Theology department gives him invaluable knowledge of the scriptures relating to every area of life. In addition to Bible study courses, practical theology, hermeneutics and pastoral methods courses are included in the curriculum. Mr. James Mason, chairman of the department, is assisted by Mr. Stanton Richardson, vice-president of the college.

History is offered at SPBC as a major area of study for preseminary students, or as a basis for graduate work in education, government, journalism, or business. The numerous courses offered in this department include history of modern civilization, the Waterloo of many unwary freshmen; American history, and renaissance and reformation history to mention a few. Chairman of the department, Mr. Joseph Tewinkel is assisted by Mr. Sidney Nelson.

Echoes of Music Ministry Penetrate Total College

No division of studies at SPBC can claim more involvement of the entire student body than the music department. Although the majority of students participating in such organizations as Choral Club, Girls Choir, Male Chorus, or the concert band are not music majors, they do reap a particular satisfaction from the involvement.

For those who plan to pursue a career in this field, the department offers the Bachelor of Music degree with a major in music education. Students may take private lessons in voice, piano, organ, cello, trumpet or clarinet. Course work in the department curriculum includes history, theory, and practical studies in music.

ABOVE RIGHT: Mr. Joe Tewinkel has undertaken the direction of the Choral Club this year in addition to his duties in teaching history and Bible courses. ABOVE: Mr. Ray Schweizer is caught in an unusually calm moment. He is a very animated director of the Male Chorus and band, and an instructor in academic aspects of the music department as well. RIGHT: Mrs. Lucille Brown performs multiple duties as teacher, Girls Choir director, and chairman of the SPBC music department.

LEFT: Mr. Harold Brundin is high on the longevity list of St. Paul Bible College faculty members. Many a student soloist has profited from his instruction in voice.

Christian Ed Perspective Focuses on Individual

Unique posters for missionary conference, frequently changed bulletin boards in several classrooms, and Sunday School practice-teaching constitute essential parts of the Christian Education program at the St. Paul Bible College. Mrs. Marilyn Weldin is co-chairman of the department and bears a heavy teaching schedule. Dr. Donald Trouten has been forced to relinquish much of his attention in the area of CE to devote time to duties as both Academic Dean and Interim President. Mrs. Claudine Hindmand helps to ease the burden by teaching a few hours a week amid her other responsibilities.

Instruction in Christian Education circumscribes a broad field in seeking to minister to the total person. Graduates of this curriculum are prepared to enter churches as directors of Christian education or youth workers. Many students take further studies in journalism, business, law, or elementary education upon earning the Christian Education degree from SPBC.

Minors in missions, history, or music may be completed within the Christian Education major. A broad Bible background is also a vital segment of the total curriculum.

Missions Department Curriculum Features Cookies, Nurses, Study

ABOVE RIGHT: In the same office, some joker plays a trick on Mr. Conley. BELOW: Coffee and cookies, giving injections and pulling teeth, all make for a very interesting missions seminar class for seniors in the department.

Through the centuries thousands of dedicated young men and women have acted upon Christ's command to "go, make disciples of all nations." Today, with the guidance of the foreign missions department of SPBC, such men and women are preparing to take up the task. A comprehensive view of missions equips the student for effective service for Christ under the Christian and Missionary Alliance or other boards.

Rev. William W. Conley heads the department of missions instruction, and handles a full schedule of classes. The major includes studies in Principles of Missions, History of Modern missions, linguistics, anthropology, and ethnology. The areas of Bible and theology are emphasized as well, in preparation for the task of reaching lost souls.

Trustee Board Selects President

The major task of the Board of Trustees this year was the extremely important business of selecting a new president for the St. Paul Bible College. This duty was accomplished, and the New York headquarters of the Society approved the nomination of Rev. Arthur P. Johnston for the head of the college. The interim period during which the school has been without a regular president, has been very efficiently commanded by our Academic Dean, but the multiple responsibilities are more than enough work for two men. Dr. Trouten worked closely with the board and its chairman Mr. Charles Eumurian, in hastening the selection of the new president.

College Promotion Grows

When it comes to the pocketbook, most people are very touchy. But the St. Paul Bible College is working on an ever-growing scale to help many individuals put that touchy money to good use. Investment in Bible colleges or in other areas of the Lord's work is one kind of stewardship that few people have considered. Mr. Ray Cook is developing this program of service, and also advises in drawing up wills, so that people can be assured that their earthly possessions will be properly and honorably disposed of when they are left behind.

Besides the stewardship services offered by the college, Mr. Russell Ferry keeps himself occupied with other areas of college development. As finances continue to come in for the new campus project, the reality of actual construction draws nearer.

Mr. Marvin Thompson doesn't have enough to do as Director of Public Affairs, so he adds to his responsibilities in the PR office, the compounded problems and duties of the alumni association. Mr. Thompson is the man with the smile for everyone, because that is a big part of public relations; he also has some PR materials to send along with every Christian service group on its travels; and he can always talk and talk and talk about SPBC . . . all to the good, of course.

The alumni association makes several financial investments in students each year. Giving out these scholarships seems to make Marvin Thompson's smiling face shine just a little bit more.

May my death

Who's Who in American Colleges & Universities?

ABOVE: Named this year in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities were seniors Wanetta Wagoner, Rich Brown, and Gwen Franz; juniors Dale Heckman and Faith Boese.

RIGHT: The Junior Chamber of Commerce Court of Honor lauded five St. Paul Bible College seniors: Lars Wilhelmsson, Rich Brown, Eldora Shantz, Margaret Taylor, and Doug Domier. Ruth Mattson was the graduate with the highest grade point average on her cumulative college record.

Graduates Honored by Jay Cee's

For the first time, graduates of the St. Paul Bible College were invited, along with graduates of other Twin Cities colleges and universities, to participate in a program of honor sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Five of our top seniors were chosen for this honor. The formalities of the evening affair conveyed the congratulations and good wishes of the city to graduating young people, for their ambitious achievement.

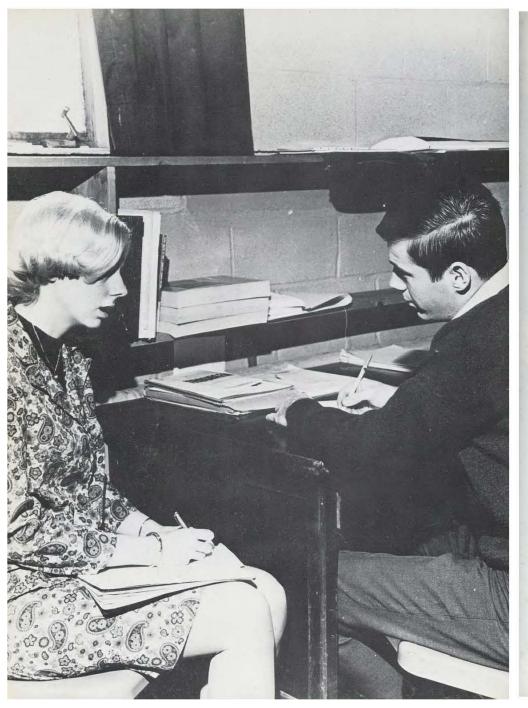

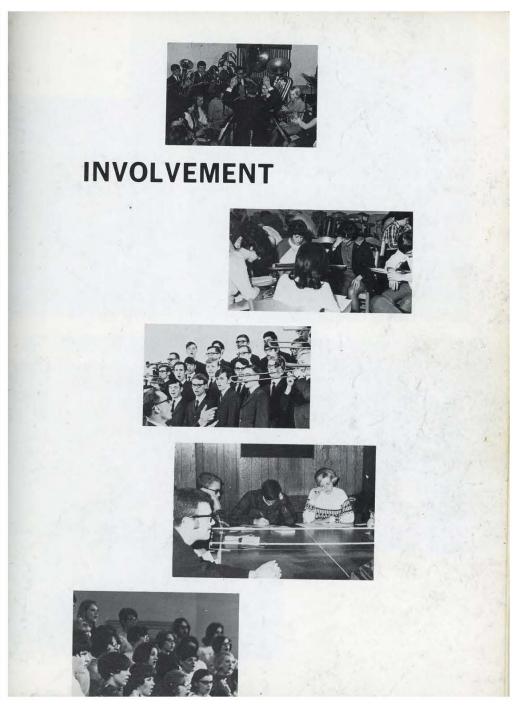

Missionary Meetings Present Challenge, Promise

Christian Service Takes Many Forms at SPBC

The department of Christian service at SPBC includes assignments as varied as the people participating in them. The students may take part in musical ensembles, as teachers, preachers, or what-have-you.

Many SPBC graduates recall with nostalgia their many trips to rest homes, visiting the elderly and those confined to bed. Others with musical talent form quartets or trios, and some travel quite extensively. Sunday school teachers learn more than their students, and thus accomplish a double purpose through their CS assignments.

Many an Alliance preacher presently in this district gained his first pulpit experience under the auspices of the Christian service department. Who would have guessed, listening through their first agonized attempts at preaching, that these "boys" would some day move many hearts as they open the Word of God to their own congregations?

Clearly, the CS assignments are as much instructive and practical experiences as they are a service to the college and to the Lord. Another branch of possible service and training is in the newly reorganized Fishers of Men group. Using Paul Little's How to Give Away Your Faith, this group of students is getting involved with the responsibility of witnessing to others of the reality of Christ.

Prayer Bands Present Missionary Challenge

Everyone at SPBC prays for the missionaries at least once a week for a half-hour, and hopefully more. But the special time set aside each week for this purpose helps to bring the most real part of missions closer to the students. Needs of missionaries and nationals on the fields throughout the world, as well as those in the homeland, are presented for the prayerful attention of the students. Nine prayer bands are grouped to include the area of interest of everyone so that the world is covered and each student involved in the challenge.

TOP: When everyone is present, the instrumentalists directed by Mr. Ray Schweizer fill the platform and spill onto the main floor of the chapel. ABOVE: Particularly honored was this ensemble which accompanied Carole Reinhart during a special presentation in the Twin Cities.

Senate Promotes Social Interaction

According to Senate president Rich Brown, the specific goals set for this year were "social interaction" and "structural organization." The success or failure of such designs might be difficult to measure by conventional standards, but no doubt we had one of the most active student representative groups in several years. Sometimes it seemed as though Student Senate was involved in everything — but it was a hardworking group with a great deal of varied responsibility and some ingenuity. This year's notable innovations included the first winter banquet, and election of a homecoming queen.

ABOVE: Senate President Rich Brown stresses social interaction as a major goal set for this school year. RIGHT: From the looks of this usual Tuesday afternoon Senate meeting, it must be very exciting! BELOW RIGHT: Surrounding the president on the platform are all the officers introduced to the student body.

GC Presents Missions

Under the direction of Mrs. Lucille Brown, the Girls Choir completed another year of service to the Lord. Their full schedule of concerts during the spring was followed by a tour of eight states during the first weeks of summer vacation.

The music of the Girls Choir includes several religious classics as well as hymns of praise and adoration. The concert traditionally closes with the challenging mission of the church today.

BELOW: Members of the 1968-69 Girls Choir were Kay Berge, Linda Anderson, Joan Crawford, Liz McNeely, Diane Swedberg, Cheryl McKenzie, Lynn Hess, Effie St. Cyr, Carol Ehresmann, Joyce Meerdink, Venus Thompson, Brenda Schaa, Ann Eumurian, Debbie Crowe, Marsha Fifield, Judy Bergman, Ruth Carr, Becky Larson, Jan Carlson, Sandy Young, Liz Phillips, Ardythe Boden, Linda Kottke, Phyllis Gable, Rhoda Mathre, Ruth Ellingson, Kathy Ploeger, Becky Herin, Sue Perhus, Donna Severson, Judy Anderson, Mary Ann Brock, Dorothy Ronzheimer, Linda LeCompte, Shari Eklof, Darlene Matson, Judy Miller Anderson, Bev Evans, Ina Bucholz, Diane Graff, Gwen Franz, Sandy Wemer, Jane Bernard, Jane Garwood, Shirley Nelson, Jane Simmons, Jane Hose, Becky Folstrom, Grace Spurlin, Nancy Butler.

Its members are: Kevin Jensen, Wes Wiley, Lenny Greenberg, Jared Huber, George Halama, Bob Stern, Phil Jones, Walt Lowe, Howard Dantuma, Dick Birr, Jim Jensen, Roger Shantz, Lyman Dale, Bernard Badtke, Dave Cotner, Dean Dansberg, Doug Gettle, Gene Post, Doug Reed, Fred Royle, Ken Mettler, Ken Fox, Ed Molzon, Neil Miller, Denny Groeneweg.

ABOVE: Besides directing the Male Chorus and band and other ensembles, Mr. Schweizer teaches several classes in the music department. RIGHT: Several other instrumentalists accompany the Male Chorus during its concerts.

Male Chorus Goes to Wadena

The relatively young Male Chorus took a weekend trip to Wadena as one of the highlights of their concert season this year. They also had many concerts in the Twin Cities area churches throughout the spring, and participated in several events with the other two college choirs.

Adding to the volume of the men's voices, the band frequently accompanied the vocal group with its complementary variety.

ABOVE: The voice of Gary Moore was featured in one of the first of the cultural events of the school year 1968-69. RIGHT: All who attended the organ recital of Dr. Pearson felt that his mastery merited the time spent. BELOW: The climax of the cultural series was in the performance of Thom Hardwick and Nathalie Haag, held in Simpson Church and well-attended.

The 1968-69 Choral Club of the St. Paul Bible College experienced a most exciting and exhausting concert season. The highlight of the year was of course the tour, which took the SPBC musicians as far as Washington, D.C. For many of the students, this was the first time in the nation's capital, and they were thrilled by the unusual opportunity to give a concert standing on the steps of the Capitol.

Mr. Tewinkel completed his first year as director of the Choral Club in a really remarkable season. One of the most memorable parts of the concert program was a rendition of the creation story in a Negro spiritual-type drama. Steve Goranson narrated the vision of the Creator in a moving presentation. Much of the music used this year was written or arranged by the director, and all very well expressed by the choral group.

Student Committees Help Guide Campus Living

Probably the most difficult thing a SPBC student could be asked to do, would be to impose disciplinary measures upon another student of his own peer group. In any normal life situation that demands cooperative living, however, rules must be established and must be enforced — and peer-group decisions are better respected than authoritarian demands.

The student conduct committee is headed by the vice-president of the Student Senate, and includes members from each class. One of the problems it attempted to handle this year was a recurrent parking lot disturbance. The lot was patrolled and "tickets" were issued, including fines for offenses.

The Women's Dorm Council was headed by Sue Conner, and included representation from each class. Duties of dorm council members were eased by responsibilities taken by floor counselors placed throughout the dormitory, but the council was involved with representing the students to the deans. In the men's dormitory, John Mowery led the representative council.

FAR LEFT: Bruce Humphrey took most of the pictures for the Shield, developed and printed them; he also did the work of business manager, but found the two jobs slightly time-consuming. LEFT: The first task of the yearbook staff was to distribute '68 books. Howard Hedegard also helped with the photography.

Grapplers Demonstrate Strength in Opening Victory

BELOW: John Lohman needs to pin his opponent's shoulders to the mat for a full second to score the desired five points.

Room 102 was converted from a sophisticated classroom to the scene of less than sophisticated wrestling work-outs nearly every night of the week until the season ended. Under Coach Dave O'Brien's vigorous leadership, the grapplers exerted a great deal of concentrated effort in mastering new techniques. Reversals, half and full nelsons, and headlocks were the order of the day as the wrestlers prepared to meet their foes.

The season record proved a disappointing 1-11. The sole victory was over Concordia with a score of 19-16 on the opponent's home floor.

John Lohman, Don Block, and Walt Lowe were the most successful wrestlers this year. Since most of the veterans will be returning next season, we look forward to greater conquests by our matmen in 1970.

BELOW: Ray Olson manuevers around groping hands and lays in another bucket for the Crusaders.

Crusaders Score Victorious Climax in Final Encounter

The Crusaders basketball team wrapped up this season with a luke-warm 5-18 record. Despite height disadvantage and lack of facilities on campus, the fighting cagers refused to give up hope.

With only one senior, Rich Brown, on the roster, underclassmen composed the backbone of the team. Midway through the season a shuffling of positions was necessary to replace injured sophomore Paul Petersen as center. The Crusaders fought for a climactic victory in the final game over Dr. Martin Luther College. With four players fouled out, the SPBC team remained on top scoring 93 points to Luther's 89.

Throughout the season, individual standouts were distributed among all four classes.

Intercollegiate Golf Swings Six Matches

Editor's Acknowledgements

A tremendous sigh of relief escapes me as I realize the 1969 Shield is completed. I'm certain that I learned nearly as much of practical value in my basement office cubicle as I did in any one classroom — and that is not intended to deprecate classroom learning. Snowed under sheafs of blue-graphed layout sheets and a dozen orange grease pens, staring bleary-eyed at hundreds of 3 1/2x4 1/2 black-and-white photos, swallowing countless aspirins and gallons of black coffee . . . what is to be learned? Things like organization, cooperation, patience, persistence, and how to cope with a thousand large and small annoyances, disappointments, frustrations, and sometimes impossibilities and failures. Fortunately for you and me and anyone else concerned with the SPBC annual, I was not alone in this "educational experience." Several others had to learn right along with the editor about yearbook production in particular. I want to express my sincere gratitude to the following people who participated in producing the 1969 Shield.

Steve Jones — Sports editor, who was most cooperative and conscientious; my personal apologies for not being pictured on the staff page

Rene Matzke — organizations editor, who did a lot of work on one of the most difficult sections, in spite of problems beyond her control

Marilyn Moravec — academic and personnel editor, one of the most dependable co-workers I had, and who I regret was not pictured on the staff page

Kae Merrill — student life editor, whose job actually began before school started and extended until graduation, frequently hampered by lack of pictures

Margaret Taylor — class pictures editor, the speediest layout planner I ever met

Bruce Humphrey — frequently regretted his ambition to be both photographer and business manager for the Shield; more often than not, frustrated by the urgent requests of the lady editor: "But we must have these pictures (or ads) immediately!"

Helen Harding — suffered the dubious fortune of rooming with a night-owl editor

Cheryl McKenzie — did much of the typing for the first section

Howard Hedegard and Doug Gettle helped with photography

Gary Russell and Craig Strawser helped with layout for the first section

Dave Cutbirth helped with copy-writing for the first section

Lynn Hess and Bev Halterman helped with Marilyn's section

Cathy Shie and Cozee Morgan helped Steve with caption-writing especially

My personal thanks to all the others of you who spent time doing little things that really help. Even small services and offers of assistance were encouraging to a harried editor.

To Mr. Conley I owe a special thanks. As Shield advisor, he was forced to listen to the many woes of the relatively untrained editor. He also contributed many of the best pictures in the book.

Other members of the faculty and staff were most cooperative as well. Thank you.

My gratitude extends to Mr. Burt Hedstrom, American Yearbook Company representative, whose work was complicated by my lack of training, and without whose services there would have been no yearbook.

Holiday Studios is to be noted for taking all the class pictures.

Last but not least, we appreciate the contributions of our financial sponsors:

The Christian and Missionary Alliance

... The Sufficiency of Christ

The Christian and Missionary Alliance was organized as a missionary society in 1887 with the expressed intent of its founders to do "God's work in God's ways".

In many cities and towns of the United States and Canada, the downtown congregations and the neighborhood churches of The Alliance are still pressing forward in the interests of world evangelization, witnessing to the sufficiency of Christ and demonstrating New Testament missionary principles.

The overseas ministry of the Alliance is carried on in Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador and Peru in South America; in Congo, Gabon, Guinea, Ivory Coast and Mali-Upper Volta in Africa; in Israel and the Arab Lands in the Near East; in Indonesia, Japan, West Irian, the Philippines, and Taiwan, and on the Asiatic mainland, India (both Gujarati and Marathi areas), Viet Nam, Cambodia, Laos, Thailand and China-Hong Kong.

In this overwhelming missionary task, The Christian and Missionary Alliance has accepted responsibility for reaching 72,800,000 souls with the Gospel of Christ—before it is too late!
