THE PHILLIPS

We dedicate this yearbook to the Phillips, missionaries that were taken captive in Banmethuot on March 12, 1975. Richard's parents were missionaries to China; Lillian's parents served the Lord for over forty years in India for the CSMA. Her stateside home was Mpls.; Richard called Albany, Oregon, "home". Lillian was led into nursing and Richard into linguistics to equip them for specialized needs on the mission field to which God had clearly called them. They met at St. Paul Bible College and both graduated in the class of 1954. Individually, the Lord led them to the primitive mountain tribesmen of Viet Nam, and there they met again.

Before marriage, Lillian was relief nurse at the Dalat Clinic. Richard was assigned to make a language survey of the unevangelized areas, making lists of words wherever he went. Word lists were then compared, and the results showed where missionaries could be placed with the greatest degree of effectiveness.

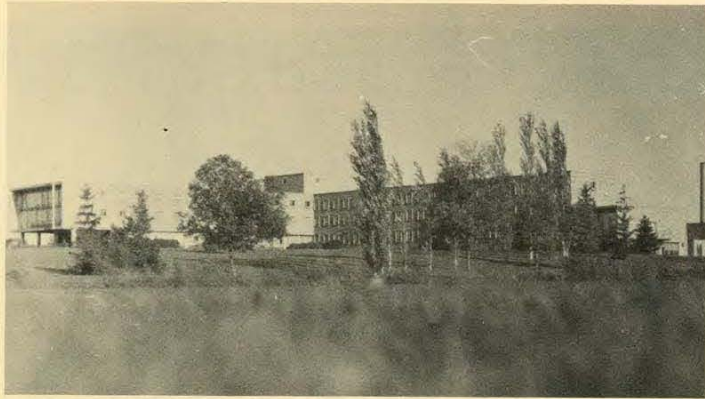

After their wedding they settled down among the Hre-a large tribe with no written language and very little previous contact with the Gospel. Their language must be learned and a suitable writing method devised. And always there was the healing of the ill and afflicted, which brought confidence in the missionaries and a willingness to listen to the Gospel. They were moved to the Mhong people. While in Banmethuot they worked in the Bible School and did district work.

After their capture in March 12th they were released on October 30th, "Not Somehow - But Triumphantly".

The Associate in Arts program is designed for the student who is interested in receiving his general education in the distinctive spiritual atmosphere for which St. Paul is noted. Two years of general studies should enrich both the cultural and spiritual life of the student and should assist him in taking his place as an effective member of his society or of his church. For the student who wishes to pursue further studies in majors not available at St. Paul Bible College, the associate program provides a foundation for most college majors.

A one-year course leading to a certificate in Bible has been designed to accommodate students interested in a short-term intensive study of the Bible. This program provides a Biblical foundation for effective lay leadership in the local church. Students already holding a baccalaureate degree from a liberal arts college and wishing to meet the entrance requirements of the Alliance School of Theology and Missions will also find this program helpful.

The Missions Department at St. Paul Bible offers a two-year program that has for its objective the preparation for missionary service of persons who intend to pursue or have completed nursing education. The emphasis of the program is to make it possible in a close sequence to gain qualified nursing education and missionary education and thus prepare for possible foreign service.

The primary objective of the Missions Department is to prepare men and women for overseas ministries under the Christian and Missionary Alliance or other mission boards.

Many missions express as their objective the establishment of indigenous churches. It is the conviction of this department that success in such a goal requires spiritual maturity, competency in the Scriptures, plus a broad base of sound knowledge in principles and strategy of missions and anthropological insights. As far as possible within the scope of the educational experience of this College, students will work toward such a goal.

The primary objective of the History Department is to provide under-graduate level preparation for graduate theological study in seminary. Those men thus trained would be prepared to serve in pastoral or missionary ministries with The Christian and Missionary Alliance or other evangelical denominations. The department seeks to provide both a broad Biblical background, and general education studies within the framework suggested by the American Association of Theological Schools as prerequisites for seminary study.

A secondary objective of the History Department is to provide a liberal arts background with a Christian perspective for the student who may wish to pursue further a career in teaching, government, law, journalism, social work or business.

S.A.! WHAT IS THAT?

This response is common among new students at St. Paul Bible College. It has been a real joy and learning experience to serve as a Student Assistant. Here are some words to describe an S.A.'s experiences and responsibilities.

- Supplies Answers to the many questions new students ask.
- Shares the Abiding life in Christ on Wednesday evening dorm prayer meetings.
- Stimulates Action on campus rules and regulations.
- Sincere Advice is offered to those who seek counsel.
- Sounding Agent between students and deans.
- Supplications And prayers sent to God for His grace, guidance and love.

The primary objective of the Department of Bible and Theology is to prepare young men for a pastoral ministry in The Christian and Missionary Alliance or other evangelical denominations. It seeks to provide an intensive program of study that will lead to skill in Bible exegesis; a theology that finds its center in God's purpose to redeem and in the church's ministry to evangelize; and practical training in the preaching and pastoral responsibilities of the Christian ministry.

The primary objective of the Christian Education Department is to prepare men and women for the educational ministry in the local church. It serves non-professional as well as professional ends. It not only prepares men and women for full-time ministries in Christian education, but it also prepares Bible college students preparing for other vocations. A student in this department will gain a basic understanding of the educational principles and skills to enable him to serve as a professional worker in Christian education. Courses prepare the graduate to function effectively in leading the total educational program of the church. All Christian education graduates are qualified to receive the diploma of the Evangelical Teacher Training Association which entitles them to conduct teacher training courses in local churches.
