SP SAINT PAUL BIBLE COLLEGE

Free to be what I am with the goal of becoming what God intended me to be.

At the beginning of each year SPBC takes on a unique character. This character is formed through the individual personalities at the college. As people leave and new people come, the character changes; and it never returns to what it once was. Even though people come and people go, the desire to become Christ-like is always present.

Becoming Christ-like does not mean the stripping of our individuality. Rather, it is allowing God to perfect our character. We are free to be what we want. Throughout the year we sought God, with the goal of becoming what He had for us.

People are SPBC. Each individual associated with SPBC contributes an integral part of the total institution.

The attitudes, goals, and characteristics of the college depend upon the attributes of the students, faculty, staff, administration and all the others who contribute to the SPBC community. In short, SPBC is exactly what we, the people that compose it, make it.

Each of us brings a unique set of talents and abilities to SPBC to be developed and refined until these talents are fitted for the ministry for which God is preparing us. Whether your aspirations for service lie with the uneducated Dani of Irian Jaya or the six-year-old entering the Calvary Elementary School, you are at SPBC primarily to prepare for that sphere of service. From the long hours of reading endless textbooks and writing exacting term papers, to the practical experiences of student teaching in Mound Elementary School or ministering at Lake Auburn Rest Home, the primary purpose of this institution is to transform each individual from a mass of raw material into an efficient tool to be used by God for His glory.

Praise performance, the name of the game

Athletics make up an exciting part of the total SPBC community. The goal of the athletic program is to bring praise to God through the performance of the individual sports. This goal insures SPBC athletics of a successful season regardless of the number of games won or lost. When done for the glory of God, even losing a game can hardly be termed a defeat.

"The Crown awaits the conquest"

"The crown awaits the conquest" was the controlling theme of the first weekend of November, that marked Homecoming 1978. The campus was flooded with hundreds of alumni, many of whom were seeing the miracle campus" for the first time. The annual Alumni Banquet was highlighted by the presentation of the Alumnus of the Year award to Viron O. Miller. Two of the alumni also presented a chapel service.

Among the visitors during the week of Homecoming were twenty-one members of the Board of Trustees and the newly elected President of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, Dr. L.L. King. His ministry in chapel was preceded by a "gala SPBC welcome" complete with the decoration of the trees lining the driveway with white paper which only faintly resembled tick-er-tape.

The crowning of the new Homecoming Queen, Barb Back, highlighted not only the Student Homecoming Banquet but the entire week. The queen and her court witnessed the annual rout of the alumni basketball team on Saturday afternoon. Homecoming 1978 brought a special flavor and excitement to the SPBC campus that will never again be quite duplicated.

Cindy Bolhouse, accompanied by Brad Johnson and Cheri Kringle, provide musical entertainment.

Students work to pay SPBC bill

Paying off a school bill is a major task for the majority of SPBC students. It doesn't take most of us very long before we realize that the money from our summer jobs isn't going to go as far as we had expected it to.

In order to get our bills paid off, many of us are fortunate to get a job on campus. These opportunities are supplied as a means of financial aid. Students are employed in many different areas: kitchen, maintenance, house-keeping, offices, and switch-board, with most of us averaging ten to twelve hours a week.

One advantage to working on campus is that transportation doesn't have to be arranged, and the hours are worked around your schedule.

Washing dishes requires team work for Tom Schultz and Eugene Be with.

Work piles up quickly for Auh Nguyen.

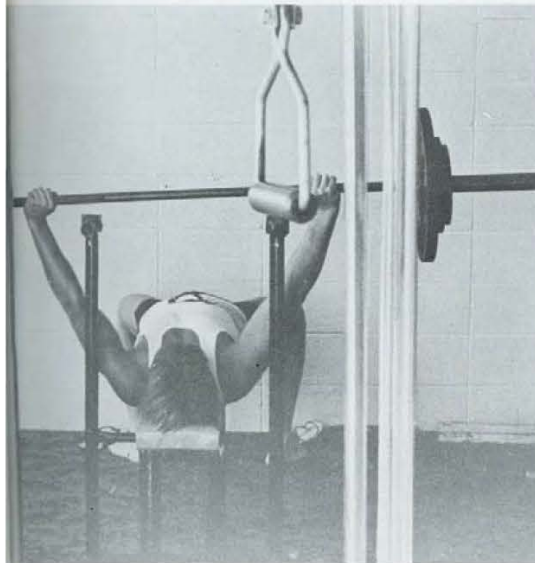

Carol Hoagie gets the supplies she needs to keep the boys' rooms clean.

Steve O'Dell sweeps every nook and cranny in the guys' dormitory.

Working in the weight room, playing tennis, getting involved in intramurals are only some of the activities that SPBC students enjoy to stay in shape, keep from going insane, or enjoy for the simple reason of enjoying.

"The Lance comes to you as an instrument of stimulation, as a feather to tickle you under the chin, or a paddle to swat you to attention. Mostly, the Lance comes to you as a doctor, trained to hear your heartbeat, equipped with a hammer to test your reflexes and bound by a vow to never ever cut unless the cut will make healing possible."

Yvonne Carmon, editor for the Lance first semester, wrote the previous as the Lance's reason for existence. Second semester Jay Baldwin and later David Wick and Nathan Unseth edited the Lance. Other staff members included on these pages were Lis French, Mary Anne Masley, Doug Trouten, Len Rubeck and Tim Johnson.

Brak, pictured at the left, served as the Lance mascot. Brak was used to show the experiences of life as a student - such as writing term papers, listening with headphones, and having devotions. You might remember his unique emergence from the test-tube.

The Shield

Layout, typing, discriminating between choice of prints, missing due dates, rolls of film ruined were all components of this Shield.

The work involved in producing the Shield proved to be extensive, in time especially.

It could not have been accomplished, however, without the help of the staff and friends. I greatly appreciated the contributions of John Mustain who stayed the summer and did 90 percent of the printing; Nate Unseth and Barry Felt who did some writing; Steve Nehlsen and Rosalie Roman who donated pictures; Summer Perrel who did much of the typing and David Wick who designed layout and wrote.

Mr. Stan Larson, pictured below, was an invaluable asset in advising, counseling, feeding, crying, etc., with the staff. We thank you.

There are also students chosen from SPBC to go on AYC (Alliance Youth Corps) assignments in the summer. The SPBC AYC team included: Seated - Ronda Brown, Scott Austin, Tim Sheppard, Bill Strom, Joyce Wiggins, Melissa Myers, Jacque Bishop, Deb Gohman, Marti Grosssoehme, Dan Puumala, Karen Lindsey, Patty Hendricks and Roberta Fitzsimmons. Standing - Mark McKeever, Nate Reckling, Ruth Hahn, Stephanie Wells, Wendy Kimball, Becky Emmel, Sharon Gantz, Bryan Elliott, Mike Dellos and Jeff Kiel.

The activities culminating the year were marked by changes from the previous year. Musicales served as the opportunity to publicly express appreciation to Viran Miller. He, pictured below with his wife, was honored and rewarded for his many years of service with a plaque.

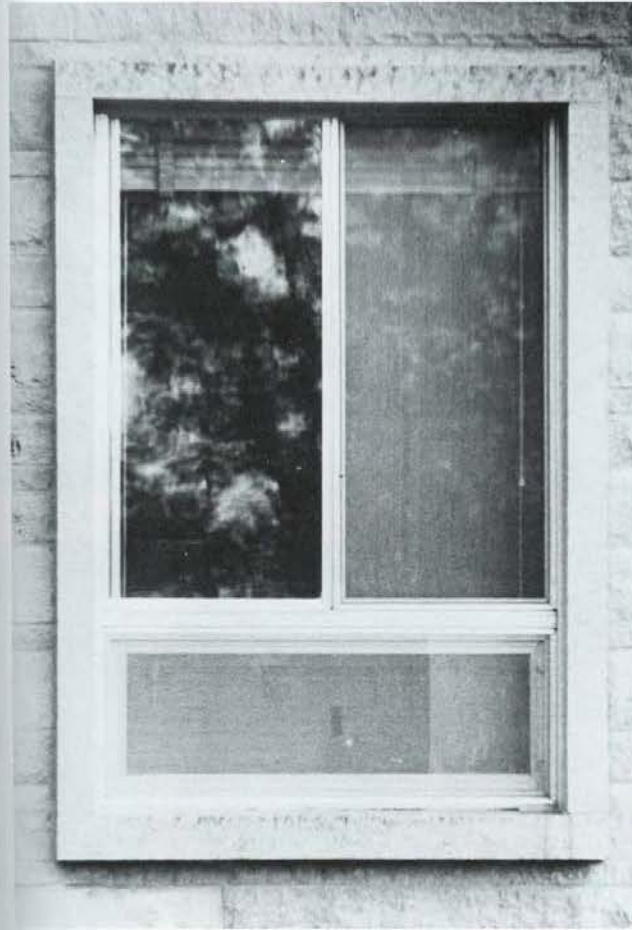

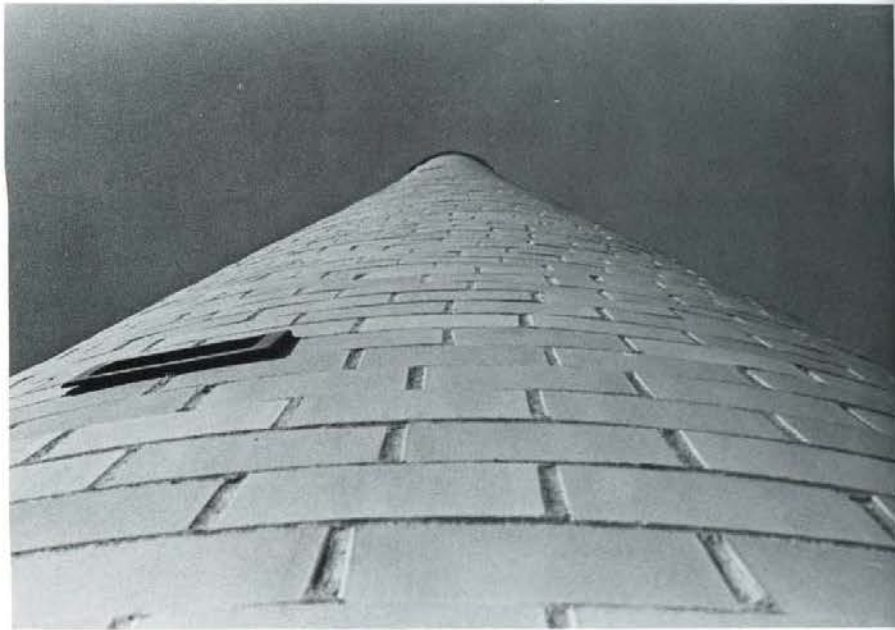

Commencement, after much confusion, was held outside. A couple students decided to enjoy watching it from the vantage point of the roof. They, along with the rest of the crowd of spectators, faculty and graduates, weren't jostled long however. Dr. Wendell Price, president of A.S.T.M., was able to barely end his address when the rain came. This commenced the scramble to get inside and into the chapel where the diplomas were given to the graduates.

Crusader Sports

It's hard work. It can be frustrating. And frequently, the most valiant efforts go unrewarded, or worse yet, unrecognized. So why not throw in the towel?

Well, there's an ulterior motive. For the outsider, it can be perceived in the attitude of the SPBC athletes. The insider, of course, knows it well. As followers of Jesus Christ, the Crusader athletes testify to the character-building capacity of collegiate sports. Each game can be a refiner's fire.

Discipline. Volleyball or soccer, cross-country or tennis, all can be tools for the transforming work of God in our lives. Everyone involved, from head-coach to waterboy, can participate in what Athletic Director Bud Pierce calls a "Praise Performance."

The year got off to a running start with the Crusader Co-ed cross-country cavalcade. This sprightly entourage jogged its way to a 7-12 season, and saw Dan Jones blaze his way to a new SPBC course record. (The arson charges were dropped).

Another group of men, SPBC's pride and joy, spent the fall scurrying across a four-sided plot of grass. The Crusader soccer squad performed this elemental task extremely well, finishing the year at 17-6-1, going all the way to the District Four NCCAA Tournament championship game. The loss there precluded further "Nationals" play.

Women's volleyball, like soccer, was coached by Janis Runka. The women endured a somewhat fickle season, never reaching the .500 plateau, which would have indicated some degree of parity with the league. Their inexperience hurt.

Men and women's basketball encountered a few interesting situations. The women found themselves playing Augsburg College in the Mets Sports Center. The men played in a Texas tournament, and finished second in the MRCC tourney.

The spring saw the inauguration of women's softball. Men's baseball and tennis also filled the schedule. When not battling their opponents, these three squads were struggling with the springtime weather. It can be hard work.

PEOPLE

"Each man, woman, and child is of great value
... simply because of his or her origin."

—Francis Schaeffer

Our value, as SPBC students and as people, comes from our origin of being created by God and in His likeness. The variety among us — our nationalities, abilities, dislikes, convictions — does not and cannot diminish our worth as people either individually or corporately.

Seniors

SPBC seniors of '79 ended their college careers the same way they began them — by standing in line. At least the end of the line at Commencement didn't mean a bill for $1500.

Just like the first time they registered, some graduates at Commencement probably stood in line next to someone they'd never met or even heard of. Funny how people can be strangers in such close quarters.

The Commencement address was delightfully short, thanks to an imminent downpour. The rain was inconvenient, and damp robes weren't delightful, but rumor had it that SPBC's largest graduating class would receive bonus junior lifesaving certificates.

Then there were the certificates of official membership in the SPBC Alumni Association. Welcome to another mailing list.

Now they've been ushered into a world that seems less kind than it was four years earlier; God is heard mentioned when people stub their toes, and not when students sleep, jabber, or study their way through chapel.

Before long, you'll probably hear of those who became scintillating successes (some unexpectedly). You'll hear little of those who slid, quickly or slowly, to failure, and spend their lives wishing, "If only . . ." You'll be surprised at some of those, too.

Eventually, they'll get together and revive memories of the "good old days." Somehow, after a few years of disgruntled parishioners, colicky babies, and unbalanceable checkbooks, the tiny dorm rooms, waiting for an open telephone, and writing term papers at 3 a.m. won't seem so bad.
